Chicago Is Scene of Bombing Today

Guests of Hotel Flee Into Streets Windows Break

Bombs Are Set Off In Paper and Auto Company.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

Negro Knocked Down By Two Unidentified Men This Morning.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Four bombs exploded here last night and early today, one showering debris for many blocks.

Guests in the New Southern hotel fled from their rooms as an explosion in the twelfth block on Michigan street broke windows on the fourth floor of the hotel. Bombs exploded in the rear of an Auto Finance company near the hotel.

In the northeast section of the city an explosion blasted the windows of a paper company. On the southwest side bombs exploded causing much damage to two stores and an apartment house. A fourth bomb today damaged a shoe repair shop in a hotel. Guests fled into the streets as windows broke and cracked in the building.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP)—An attempt to bomb the automobile of Patrick Roche, chief investigator of the attorney of state, was believed by authorities to have been frustrated today by a negro attendant who found two men tampering with Roche's car. They were raising the hood when Clifford Jones, negro, went to question them. The pair knocked him down and fled.

Police believe they were attaching a bomb to the starter of the automobile.

Jones Brothers Wins Gold Awards

Prize Watches Offered By Chilean Nitrate Co. Go To Fulton Boys.

Two brothers, members of the Fulton 4-H club, won the gold watches offered by the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau for the best cotton and corn production in 1929. The awards were made this afternoon at a meeting in Hope city hall of 4-H club boys and Hempstead county farmers.

Van Jones won the award for cotton, and Frank Jones, for corn. They each received a gold watch from D. H. Boyd, Chilean Nitrate speaker, who addressed the meeting this afternoon. The boys are sons of Henderson Jones, of Fulton, and will be introduced around the county as champions through 1930.

This annual competition brings together a score of the county's crack young farmers, and the coveted gold watch is the most highly regarded agricultural prize of the year.

Mr. Boyd is well known here, having appeared in a series of talks in this county last year, addressing Hope Rotary club, and the Liberty and Sweet Home communities.

Young Man Shot By Wife Early Today

"I'd Rather Kill You Than Give You Up" Is the Statement Made.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 29.—(AP)—A woman who gave her name as Dixie Good, 23, of Memphis, Tenn., shot and fatally wounded Robert Good, 25, of Memphis, whom she declares was her husband at a hotel here this morning, in a room which they occupied.

Three bullets from a revolver were shot by the woman, one taking effect in the back of Good and coming out through the stomach. The other two were found lodged in the wall of their room.

A hotel employee told police after shooting that he had heard Good exclaim: "I didn't think you would do this way" and the woman replied: "I'd rather kill you than to give you up."

Hearing Will Begin On Seven Measures for the Repeal of Amendment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Chairman Graham of the House judicial committee announced today that a hearing would begin February 12 on the seven measures for the repeal of the 18th amendment.

Sheriff To Face Shooting Charge

Prosecuting Attorney to Investigate Killing of Alleged Moonshiner

LEWISVILLE, Jan. 29.—Sheriff R. H. Duty of Lafayette county was arraigned in justice court here this morning in connection with the fatal shooting Sunday of Oscar Call, aged 26, of Garland City, during a raid on a still.

Sheriff Duty said that he and his deputy, Bryan Cryer, fired in front and behind the fleeing men to stop them when they failed to halt. The other men apparently escaped injury.

Prosecuting Attorney Steve Carrigan of Hope said that he had ordered his deputy to investigate the shooting, but that he had been informed the affair was entirely accidental. He said that he had been informed that none of the men at the still was armed or offered resistance, but that all ran when the officers ordered them to halt.

Sheriff Duty said that the report that Call's stomach was riddled with bullets as reported by a Texarkana doctor who examined him was "exaggerated." The sheriff said that four shots were fired and that he fired three of them, calling to the three men to halt while they were running into a thicket.

Both Sheriff Duty and his deputy said they did not fire directly at any one of the fugitives. Both are considered good marksmen and both said they shot to stop the men, aiming carefully ahead and behind the fleeing fugitives. They believe that one of the bullets struck a tree and glanced, injuring Call fatally.

After the shooting the officers returned to Lewisville and about an hour later they were informed that Call was at the home of John Glass, a mile from the scene of the shooting, mortally wounded. The doctor who examined Call at the farmhouse said he had been wounded by one bullet. He was taken to Texarkana and died in the hospital. Attendants there reported that his stomach had been "riddled with bullets."

The hearing of Sheriff Duty is being held before Justice C. V. Bray, who has the authority either to hold him to await action of the Grand Jury or dismiss the charge against him.

Call was a resident of Garland City. He is survived by his wife and two children. Prosecuting Attorney Carrigan said he did not recall any previous charge having been filed against Call.

Oklahoman Kills Slayer of Father

Victim Shot to Death as He Sits in Barber Chair At Temple.

TEMPLE, Okla., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Harry Adair, recently sentenced to 40 years in the state penitentiary for the killing of J. D. Graham, former Temple city marshal, was shot to death by Graham's son, Jim, as he sat in a barber's chair here yesterday.

After firing five shots at Adair, Graham walked to his car, drove to Walters and surrendered to Sheriff O. C. Hopper. He was held without bond.

Adair was in the chair, face covered with towels. When the towels were removed Adair found himself facing the son of the man he killed. Graham, without a word drew a pistol and fired five times. Adair died instantly.

The elder Graham was slain last April in a pool hall after he ordered Adair, said to have been drunk, to leave. Adair complied but returned a few minutes later with a shotgun. Without warning he shot and killed Graham.

Adair, who had been convicted of manslaughter, was at liberty on bond pending appeal of his conviction to the State Criminal Court of Appeals.

No Mail, So Postman Has Throwing Contest

TOULOUSE, Jan. 29.—When Jean Vives, a postman of this city was seized with madness because he found he had no mail to deliver on his route, he mounted a house under construction and started tearing off tiles and throwing them on passersby. As the tiles were heavy and several pedestrians were injured the police station was called.

The fire department came to the aid of the police and squirted Vives off the roof. Before they succeeded, however, the postman had broken in the windows of all the neighboring shops and torn down the telephone and light wires.

Winter Weather Hits Louisiana and Mississippi

Storm Warnings Hoisted On Crafts Along Gulf Coast.

SNOW FALLS IN ALA.

2-Inch Snow Reported In Northern Alabama At 10:00 A. M.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Winter played a return engagement in Louisiana and Mississippi today after a fortnight of rising temperature which was followed by rain.

A gale with the tide water of this section, hoisted storm warnings on the Gulf coast from Carrabelle, Fla., to Port Eads, La., and small craft warnings extended west to the Texas coast.

Interior Mississippi was caught with a sleet and ice storm with snow falling at Meridian and Laurel.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 29.—Snow was falling in north Alabama today, the third in this section during the winter season. A steady snow which has been falling this morning had covered the ground to the extent of two inches at 10 o'clock. All indications this morning was that it would continue to fall from chilly skies throughout the day.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A severe cold wave spread over the south today, bearing high wind and snow through the middle south with a gale on the coast.

Cold weather is forecast for tonight over southeast Louisiana and northern Florida. Snow fell in Mississippi northern Alabama, and northern Georgia, as the mercury fell on the heels of a general rain.

A strong wind at Gulfport unroofed several houses and did considerable damage. A pedestrian was picked up by the wind and blown a block down the street.

Freezing temperatures for Louisiana and Mississippi and along the Gulf coast was predicted for tonight. Sub-freezing temperatures were forecast for Arkansas.

Cold Waves Hurt Hempstead County

Much Damage To Crops, Says County Agent Lynn Smith.

Eighty-five per cent or better of the peach crop in Hempstead county is killed according to County Agent Lynn Smith who made several counts on trees in various parts of the county yesterday. Indications are that a large per cent of the crop it killed in the Nashville area. A count was made in the small orchard of Roy Francis on the Fulton road and he apparently will get perhaps 20 per cent of a crop provided they are not killed between now and spring.

Sam Knox of the University Extension Service counted 403 buds dead and 69 alive from branches of the trees on the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station. This count would indicate a 15 per cent crop.

Farmers should carefully check the fruit buds, and if they are practically all killed it would perhaps be advisable to cut trees back pretty severely. The fruit on the peach tree moves farther away from the base of the tree each year since it is produced on the new wood each year.

This means when the tree is pretty old that many branches are larger than they should be; consequently when they have no crop of fruit on them may be desirable to "dehorn." This should be practiced judiciously.

The severe weather has damaged cover crops severely. Oats especially. The rye will probably come out. Oats to withstand such freezes must have been planted at the proper time and received an application of superphosphate when planted. The Superphosphate undoubtedly causes the oats to root deeper increasing their resistance to freezing. Where the oat crop is killed, plans should be made to sow again in February with such varieties as Fulghum, about the last week in February. They should then receive an application of nitrate in March. This side dressing may be broadcast.

The freeze will mellow up the soil, and help greatly to reduce insect injury in many instances. The number of boll weevils overwintering will perhaps be much less than the past few years. How great the damage will be to the weevil, however, will largely depend on hibernating quarters. While the severe weather has been harmful in many respects mainly to cover crops, peaches and in delaying the plating of radishes, it has been valuable in mellowing up the soil and killing certain insects.

When Levee Broke Near Blytheville

Widespread devastation wrought by the floods in Arkansas is shown in the picture above, taken as a levee broke in the Big Lake section 17 miles west of Blytheville. Sub-zero weather and ice hampered efforts of rescuers who sought to save the lives of some 200 or more families trapped in the upper part of their homes and on high ground by the raging waters. At right is a relief boat, one of the first to come out of the flooded area.

Camden Paper Mill Resumes Its Work

Re-Opening Has Put Be- tween 200 and 300 People to Work.

CAMDEN, Jan. 29.—Reopening of the Camden mill to the International Paper Company Monday has put between 200 and 300 Camden men and women back to work, after a period of idleness while repairs were being made to the machinery.

With resumption of activities by the paper plant every Camden industrial enterprise is now active, and the hum of the wheels of industry pervades the city and its environs. The refinery of the Houston Oil Company resumed operations about 10 days ago, and all other local plants have been operating steadily.

Fire Loss Estimate Revised at Fulton

Will Carter, negro who was injured in a fire early Monday morning at Fulton, has been discharged from Julia Chester hospital here, where he was brought for medical treatment.

Estimates on the property damage caused by the fire have been revised, showing a total loss of about $11,000. Of this, $6,000 was sustained by J. C. Green & Sons, and $5,000 by E. U. Roberts, both of which firms operate mercantile stores.

Court Opens In Clark County

Judge Haynie Occupies Bench In Absence of Judge McCollum.

ARKADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—The January term of the Clark county circuit court opened here at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with Attorney G. R. Haynie of Camden acting as special judge in the absence of Judge J. H. McCollum of Hope who is sick. As circuit judge some years ago. Mr. Haynie presided in this the eighth district, at that time being a resident of Prescott. Prosecuting Attorney Steve Carrigan is here representing the state.

The criminal docket is heavy with honor, burglary, grand and petit larceny and other cases, but contains no murder cases. The grand jury will consider the case of G. D. Rushing et Gordon, bound over for the killing of David Hodges, also of Gordon, at that place last summer. The men were proprietors of rival jewelry stores at Gordon.

In his charge to the grand jury, Judge Haynie stressed the importance of getting witnesses to testify for some, he said, were reluctant to tell what they knew and would try to evade the issue by failing to "re-lay" the matter. He recommended drastic measures, which the law provides, to force their testimony.

Host Pays Fine Because Friends Roll the Bones

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 29.—Isaac Jackson had good "principles" but they failed to save him from paying a fine with less moral friends.

Police raided Isaac's home. He was quietly listening to the radio, when police entered, he said, but the police found several of his friends shooting dice.

His friends were fined $1 a piece, but Isaac paid the court $25.00, because he was "host" to the party.

400 Persons Await Hearing In Court

Texas Woman Is Agent for Clark

Succeeds the Former Miss Leah Arnold of That County.

ARKADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—The extension department of the college of agriculture, University of Arkansas, has announced that Miss Sybil Dean Bates is appointed home demonstration agent for Clark county and will be located here.

She succeeds the former Miss Leah Arnold, who was married during the Christmas holidays. Miss Bates, a native of Texas, came here from Victoria, where she has been in the extension service several years. Prior to that, she taught home economics in Louisiana, having graduated from Baylor College, Belton, Texas.

Miss Bates came here 10 days ago to confer with County Judge George Wells and District Home Demonstration Agent Miss Ella Poggi about the position. The extension work in Clark county, which has been in force for many years, is well developed and continues to show progress, according to Robert N. Bond, Clark county agricultural agent.

Brady's Wife Says Husband Insane

Says Knew of Relations Between Jurist and Stabbed Woman.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 29.—The silver-haired wife whom John W. Brady mistreated and spurned for the alluring companionship of a younger woman Tuesday went to the former jurist's defense in his trial in district court here on charges of murdering Leah Highsmith the comely, 28-year-old court stenographer.

The tustere countenance of the 59-year-old defendant was streaked with tears as the woman who married him 32 years ago unfolded their life story. Once during her testimony John Brady reached near collapse and walked from the courtroom during recess.

There was little standing room left vacant as Mrs. Brady seated herself on the witness chair and fixed her tear-filled eyes on the bowed head of her husband. Her softly modulated voice stifled the undertone of conversation in the proximate rows of spectators.

Tells of Drinking
"I have known John W. Brady 32 years, we were married in June, 1901. He was not a drinking man at that time. He may have drunk a little beer. He was a very brilliant man," the witness began.

"About 10 years ago he began drinking to excess while he was on the bench. After he was defeated for the judgeship it has increased. It has in the judgment of the jury.

Then followed a recital of years in which she watched the crumbling of her husband's character and physique, the development of an "irrational" egotist.

She told of being cursed in the presence of a group of her friends, of accusations of being guilty of marital infidelity.

"He was drunk when he made those accusations," she said. "He apologized afterwards."

Neglects Business
"His memory became impaired," she continued. "He could not carry on a continued conversation. His physical condition became worse. He neglected his business."

Titters ran through the tense courtroom when Mrs. Brady said her husband was troubled with insomnia and "couldn't smell anything."

"I noticed he had lost his sexual powers," the witness said in answer to a question from Defense Counsel A. E. Berry. "In my opinion he was insane."

Mrs. Brady testified she saw her husband on the night that Miss Highsmith was fatally stabbed. He took some liquor at their home and went out despite her entreaties to remain. "He started down the steps. I was in my night dress. I entreated him not to go out. If I had been dressed I would have followed him."

"Did you know Miss Leah Highsmith?" Judge Berry asked.

Knew of Relations
"Yes, I found out about her relations with him and him with her. He told me about it and so did she. She came to my house once in 1928. Before that I had been called to 210 East Tenth street. He pointed out household goods in the room and said he and Leah were going to break up."

After learning of her husband's illicit relationship with the stenographer, Mrs. Brady said she prevailed upon police to take him to Seton infirmary "to sober him up."

Public Officials Under Indictment For Conspiracy

Liquor Rings in Four Western States Were Objects of Drive.

FORMER GOVERNORS

Johnson of Oklahoma and Emerson, of Wy- oming Implicated.

(By the Associated Press)
Almost four hundred persons, including officials were under federal indictment for conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law in four western states. Alleged liquor rings in Idaho, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Texas, were the object of government drives.

In Federal court in Oklahoma City today 102 persons were awaiting trial who are accused of liquor conspiracy among whom was former Governor Henry S. Johnson, who was indicted.

W. S. Irving, prominent in political circles, and former Governor Frank Emerson, were among those implicated in Wyoming.

A federal grand jury in Galveston adjourned yesterday afternoon after indicting 120 residents of south Texas in several liquor conspiracy cases.

Cocky Quits Flying Stunts at Age of 105

AMERSHAM, England, Jan. 29.—"Cocky," the oldest inhabitant of Amersham, doesn't care for tall spinning dives, power dives or barrel rolls any more. In fact, he has "quit" for the past 10 years.

"Cocky" is a cockatoo who has lived for generations 100 years at Amersham. When he reached his 105th birthday he gave up dangerous flying. He now contents himself with strutting about and only flies in and out of windows.

L. C. Burr & Co. Sends Buyer East

Miss Katherine Barr To Purchase for 20 De- partment Stores.

Miss Katherine Barr, of Breckenridge, Texas, who was a visitor in Hope Tuesday, left last night for the New York style markets to make selections of new Spring apparel for her firm, L. C. Burr & Co., which is to open in Hope next month.

Miss Barr was recently appointed local representative of this firm's New York style and fashion buying staff. While she will continue to make her home in Breckenridge, she will superintend the buying of ladies' apparel for all 20 stores in this chain, located in Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma. Having served as society editor on an Okmulgee newspaper, and later as buyer of ready-to-wear and millinery in a leading department store, Miss Barr will bring to the Hope store, and to the others in this chain, an unusual background in style and fashion requirements for this section.

"It is the policy of this organization," said Mr. Hughes, manager of the local organization, to meet the needs and requirements of each locality we serve. This can be done more effectively by a New York buying staff, with the advice and assistance of a competent woman from the section of the country in which the store is located. We believe this to be the most practical plan to follow. Department stores in the larger centers always send their ready-to-wear and style and fashion people direct to the New York markets. Probably this is one reason why, in past years, the larger department stores have been the center of attraction to shoppers. It is hoped and expected that this same plan will prove effective and practical in Hope."

The Auto License Dispute

FOR several weeks there has been a sharp argument between city and county officials, on the one hand, and the State Highway Department, on the other, as to whether public vehicles employed by local governments have to pay the auto license tax levied against private citizens.

The highway department held that they did. County judges, mayors and others, appealed the case to the Arkansas Supreme Court. The court ruled for the highway department. On a re-hearing last Monday the Supreme Court again held for the highway department.

This means that by the new law passed in the 1929 legislature—prohibiting further issuance of free licenses for official cars—police and fire departments, county judges, sheriffs and others whose official duties require them to travel about in a car must pay the state tax the same as private citizens do.

The fallacy of this new law lies in the fact that local officials draw their support indirectly from the same revenue that maintains the state government, and anything that tends to increase the individual expense of local officers when discharging their official duties, must sooner or later be made up in salaries. Thus, the state is in the position of increasing the expense of officials in order to pay them more.

Of course this wasn't the intent of the law when the legislature passed it, but that is the way it will work out.

You will discover, on looking up the history of the auto license dispute, that the new law was passed on the grounds that official licenses were being abused—that private citizens were obtaining them from official sources. We are now about to make a comment which other Arkansas newspapers have made before us: That instead of passing a new law, the state should have enforced an old one. It is a serious offense to use an official license in private business and can be quickly punished.

Ordinarily The Star would support the State Highway Department in a controversy with local officials. All of us want to see the highway job done as quickly and efficiently as possible, and full power must be given to the officials who are made responsible for success or failure.

But here is an unfortunate move in the legislature which distresses local government without gaining anything for the state. It is no secret that almost every Arkansas city and county has a serious financial problem ahead of it, and the added burden of buying auto licenses for their official cars will not lighten that burden by any means.

The auto license reform sought in the new law was most praiseworthy. But the method was bad. The next legislature ought to put through a repealer, and recommend that the state highway patrol get busy and challenge every official license seen on a public road. That would be a sure cure for an old evil.

The Greatest Engineer of All

SINCE we live in an age that leans more heavily each year on its engineers, Dean Carl T. Humphrey of the School of Technology at Villanova College decided the other day that it would be interesting to find out what man competent authorities considered the greatest engineer of all time.

The deans of all the engineering schools in the country, accordingly, were asked for their opinions; and they voted that the honor properly belonged to James Watt, who turned the steam engine from a toy into useful machine.

From technical standpoints there may be reasons to disagree with this claim; but certainly, considering the thing in the light of the consequences that followed on his work, Watt seems eminently deserving of the honor.

We do not always realize the tremendous revolution in human affairs that followed on the development of the steam engine. Yet it was this invention that was responsible for nearly all of the changes that exist between the civilization of today and the civilization, for instance, of 1776.

It was not alone that the steam engine made possible the railroad train and the steamship, thus obliterating distance and bringing all people into closer communication with one another. The factories that it produced turned society completely upside down, and by ushering in an entirely new set of social and economic conditions helped to change men's ideas of morality, customs, laws and politics in a startling manner.

Other engineers may have had great technical skill, may have solved harder problems; but none had a greater effect on the life of the world. And that, after all, is not such a bad test.

Taking Orders From the Rear Seat!

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—At the moment everyone seems to be happy over the prohibition situation.

The dry organizations are happy because "their" president has gone into action for the cause.

Dry senators and representatives who participated in the recent ballyhoo are happy because they may now turn to their dry constituents in the coming election campaigns and claim credit for the big drive.

President Hoover is happy because he feels that after this no one will have any reason to yell at him about prohibition enforcement for some time to come.

Wets Look for Breakdown

The wets are happy because they think the Commission on Law Enforcement and Enforcement is inclined to agree with them that prohibition can never be enforced and because they rely on the failure of the new big program to prove their point.

The law enforcement committee itself is happy, in a smaller way, because President Hoover at last came to its defense with an explanation of why it should continue to be allowed to exist.

Nor should one omit Longworth, Snell and Tilson, the Republican triumvirate in the House, who doubtless are still admiring the way they told the president where he got off as he undertook to award responsibility for the big new program to a joint congressional committee which never materialized.

Bootleggers have no complaint for they have been given a pretext for raising prices, whether they are going to be hurt or not.

Of course, there are some persons who profess certain disgust over the fact that politics has completely dominated the landscape in these last few weeks of frenzied prohibition argument, but they don't count much in Washington.

The real victim of the whole melodrama is the Law Enforcement Commission, which had a chance to gain enormous prestige and do a great deal of good for the country, but may not be able to recover the opportunity. There will be an attempt in Congress to kill off the commission now and the board's best hope of survival lies in the fact that the politicians realize it might again sometime come in handy for political purposes.

A few blatant dries, quite without the support of the dry organizations, which ordinarily control them, chased the commission all over the pasture, twisted its arm and made it say "Uncle". That is the explanation of the commission's report with the strange additional fact that President Hoover was willing to join the howling pack tearing at his own pet commission by supporting the demand for a report the commission wasn't ready to give.

Most of the people on the commission expected Hoover to back them up. They have been grieving deeply because he didn't. The commission was conceived by Hoover in the campaign as the best method of handling the ticklish prohibition issue. But when it was actually appointed everyone cheered because of the high caliber of its 11 members and the fact that hardly any of them were concerned with politics. For months it appeared as if the commission, engaged in exhaustive research, with high and noble purposes, were going to be allowed to do a thorough and important job without interference. But that turned out to be too good to be true. Politicians on Capitol Hill joined together to make it a goat.

It may be sunny—it may be gay—
Whatever it is, it is God's own day.
A bit of His time He has lent to you,
To learn some lesson—some task to do.
It may be bright with a sunlit track;
It may be shadowed with storm clouds black.
But take it pluckily! Make it fair!
Show you are worthy to walk just there.
There may be song—or there may be none.
But whether the road be rough, or kind
With moss for your footing its part,
My lad,
Remember this, as you tread its way,
You must make it great—it is God's day on day.

Mrs. Ernest Wingfield entertained the members of the Tuesday Bridge Club and a few invited guests yesterday afternoon at her home on North Pine street. The rooms were bright and inviting with the seasons flowers and arranged for three tables.

Girls, what would you do if—
You were waiting at the church, dressed in beautiful bridal robes; your guests were ready; the organ was playing; the minister was becoming impatient—and the bridegroom was missing?

When he does finally put in an appearance dressed like a tramp—what would you do?

That is the problem faced by Mary Pickford in "Taming of the Shrew," which comes to the Saenger theatre today for a run of two days.

And it is just one of the hilarious situations furnished by Shakespeare in his immortal glorious comedy which brings "America's Sweetheart" and her famous husband, Douglas Fairbanks to the screen for the first time as co-stars. It is in this situation we find Miss Pickford as the stormy vixen Katherine getting a taste of her own medicine from the dashing, swaggering, conceited, yet lovable Douglas as Petruchio, he who undertakes to tame the spitfire of Padua.

Sally Eilers Seen As Western Heroine

A new and charming type of heroine makes her initial western appearance in "The Long, Long Trail," Hoot Gibson's thrilling Universal drama now on the screen at the New Grand theatre. It is Hoot's first "talkie."

The girl is charming and petite Sally Eilers, one of the most promising of the younger film actresses.

Despite her extensive screen experience young Miss Eilers had never before participated in an action picture of this type.

Miss Eilers, who is a New York girl early became interested in the theatrical profession. She trained for the stage, specializing in dancing. Her first important screen was in Mack Sennett's "Goodbye Kiss." Her work in this picture won her instant and widespread recognition.

Among the pictures in which Miss Eilers had played important roles are "Cradle Snatchers," "Slightly Used," "Trial Marriage," and "Dry Martini."

"STANDARD" GASOLINE

BETTER STICK TO "STANDARD"

is not simply an advertising slogan, but a piece of sound advice, which will lower your motoring costs and materially add to your motoring pleasures. "Standard" Improved Gasoline is a fuel which has won the favor of hundreds of thousands of motorists, because of its absolute uniformity and dependable quality. This superior quality has been arrived at and maintained through years of experience, through the equipment of great modern refineries, and through constantly improved road and laboratory tests, such as the one pictured above.

The "Standard" Refinery employee shown here is working with a fuel of definitely known knock-rating. This gasoline is put in one container; the gasoline with the unknown knock-rating, in the other. They are then alternately run in the "knock-testing machine" shown at the lower left and the knock-rating of the "unknown" is scientifically determined. The knocking in the engine causes gas to rise in the tube above the operator's left hand. The quantity of gas determines the amount of knock. In this manner are the proper anti-knock qualities insured for "Standard" Improved Gasoline.

Get the habit of buying all of your motor fuel from "Standard" Dealers whose places of business are indicated by the bars-and-circle trade-mark shown on the pump globes.

MEET ME TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing house, had been waiting for ARTHUR KNIGHT, Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, in Paris, and a son, JUNIOR, 10, at home.

A honeymoon in Bermuda is interrupted by a cablegram that Tony is on her way to America. Judith and Arthur sail to meet her. When Knight brings his daughter home the girl knows her stepmother. Later she tells Judith she must leave the house. Knight overpowers and compels Tony to marry him.

ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight had helped through college, calls on Tony. He calls frequently and one evening when Tony refuses to accompany him to a party, she tells him to go. Tony, left alone with her father, tells him she is in love with him and that she will marry him.

Tony surprises Judith by asking her to have dinner in town with her next day. Judith keeps the appointment and meets him by the river. They go to a restaurant and eat. Tony tells her she is beautiful and that she is the only girl he has ever loved.

There is a reconciliation after Knight returns home. He tells Judith they are to entertain a group of his business associates next week at a theater party. Judith has a beautiful gown for the occasion. When she tries it on Arthur praises her extravagance. Tony overhears and next day Judith finds the dress riddled with holes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXIV
FOR several moments Judith considered the ruined gown. There was no need to ask who had done this. It was perfectly obvious. Tony—of course!

She picked up the little pile of transparent stuff, so feathery light in weight, so glorious in coloring. The fabric fell apart as she lifted it, showing how the scissors had slashed the frock.

"It was too late to do anything about it that evening. Tomorrow she would see."

Judith did not confide in Arthur Knight. She had her own ideas how to deal with Tony. And there was no need to add to her husband's worries.

A trip to the shop the dress had been purchased from was Judith's first move. She drove into town early next morning and for nearly an hour consulted the proprietor of the dressmaking salon. She left with a satisfied light in her eyes and the promise of a new frock in two days. That would be in time for Arthur's theater party.

Then Judith drove to a place where it was rather unusual for ladies to shop. She instructed Bert to wait and came out of the place 10 minutes later, a small parcel wrapped in brown paper under her arm.

"I've a small job of carpentering I'd like to have you do," Judith told the chauffeur after he had brought the car to a stop in the driveway of her home. "After you have put the car in will you come into the house?"

"Yes, Mrs. Knight."

When the young man appeared in the kitchen Mrs. Wheeler led him through the house and into the living room where Judith was waiting.

"Here," she said, handing him a small steel lock. "I want you to take this and put it on the door of the clothes closet in my room. Can you do that?"

"Yes, ma'am. I'll get some tools and be right back."

To see that the task was done exactly as she wanted it, Judith went upstairs when Bert returned and showed him where the lock was to go. She tried it later, after the hammering was done. The lock worked.

"It's Tony," he said. "Arrested . . . Tony—oh, my God!"

Judith closed the door carefully, turned the new key and took it from the keyhole. She did not anticipate another attack of vandalism but laid the key safely away with her others.

TWO evenings later when Bert brought the car around in front of the house for Mr. and Mrs. Knight to go into the city to join their friends, Judith looked as sweetly radiant in a sheath of damask-colored tulle as she had the previous evening.

"Arthur told the waiter and waiter's wife that I was coming with him," she said softly.

She smiled her thanks and gathered they went out of the house and down the steps.

The theater party went off smoothly. Gerald Johnstone, the London representative of the firm of Hunter Brothers, paid young Mrs. Knight a flattering compliment. Judith was more pleased by the fact that Mrs. Hunter kept her near and seemed to single her out for special attention. Playing hostess at such an affair involved few duties.

The play was an amusing one. After it was ended they visited one of the most popular roof entertainments where there was more singing and dancing by professionals. Johnstone seemed greatly diverted by what he referred to as "Americanisms."

Midnight passed and it was after three o'clock before the party broke up.

"Well," sighed Arthur Knight as he and Judith at last started home.

"I couldn't stand this sort of thing every night in the year but it was a pretty good night after all!"

He suppressed a yawn with one hand as he spoke.

"I think everyone enjoyed it," she said dreamily. Judith had been feeling drowsy for some time herself. She was still following the habit of arising at 7:30 and breakfasting with Arthur at eight.

"They rode on in silence for a long while."

"Wonder where Tony was this evening?" her father said presently.

Judith didn't know. Tony had refused an invitation to join the theater party, frankly stating all this old fossils would bore her to sleep.

"I guess she'll be home by the time we get there," Knight's thoughts seemed to amuse him for he chuckled.

"Be a pretty good one on us, wouldn't it, to have Tony catch us getting in with the milk men! Don't you think that would be a good one—after I made her promise not to stay out after midnight?"

"Yes," Judith answered, "I guess it would."

not been in the house two minutes before the strident jangling of a ringing telephone cut the silence.

Arthur hesitated on the stairway. "What the dickens—?"

He went down the steps, through the living room and into his study. Judith, carrying her wrap thrown over her arm, followed.

Knight picked up the telephone. "Hello," he called in a gruff voice. Judith could hear the faint answering "hello" from where she stood beside him.

"Yes," said Arthur Knight. "Yes. This is Knight speaking." He was worried now, plainly anxious.

"Yes, I told you so. Yes. What's that you say? WHAT'S THAT? Oh, my God! (his feeble) Yes—I'll be right down."

He set down the receiver. "Arthur," cried Judith, now thoroughly aroused. "Oh, what is it, dear?"

Arthur Knight looked at his wife bitterly.

"It's Tony," he said. "Arrested. Down at the police station now with some fool who's charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated. Tony—oh, my God!"

The man shut his eyes as if to blot out the thought. His lips trembled.

"You're—going down to bring her home?" Judith asked quickly.

"Yes," her husband answered. How very tired, how very drawn and careworn Arthur Knight looked!

Judith sprang into action. "You get your coat and hat, Arthur. I'll run out and have Bert bring the car back."

She was gone, the front door slammed, and almost in a moment it seemed she was back.

"He's waiting," she told Knight. "Dear, are you sure you'll be warm enough? Hadn't you better have your heavy coat?"

Knight was wearing the same evening topcoat he had had on for the theater. He brushed aside Judith's suggestions.

"I'm all right," he said. "It isn't cold out. Won't take us long to get there. Goodbye, Judith."

KNIGHT had said it would not take long to reach the police station but as usual in affairs of this sort there were delays. Judith glanced at her watch and saw it was 20 minutes after four when he left the house. It was nearly six before the big car came purring up the drive again.

Judith went up to her own room and changed the fragile evening frock for a soft woolen bathrobe. Then she came downstairs again, went out into the kitchen and made coffee. After a cup of the dark, warming brew she felt strengthened.

From time to time she glanced at her watch. Five o'clock. Five-fifteen. Five-thirty.

She was resting back quietly again when the noise of the car reached her. Instantly Judith was on her feet, hurrying out into the hall.

It was still too dark to see far outside but in a moment Judith heard them. Another instant and the door was flung open to admit Tony Knight. Her father appeared in the doorway.

Tony's scarlet velvet wrap was awry. Her hair was tousled and she looked generally disheveled. Her eyes lit on Judith.

"You told him!" screamed Tony. "It's all your fault. But I'll get even with you, all right, and don't you forget it!"

Half-crying, half-mumbling, the girl ran up stairs.

SMOTHERING AND BLOATING

Mississippi Planter Gets Rid of These Ills by Taking Thedford's Black-Draught

Boogie Chitto, Miss., Mr. W. Johnston, who lives a few miles from here, says:

"I am a farmer and a hard worker. I have taken Thedford's Black-Draught when I would feel gish or out of sorts, and it has been a great help to me."

"I have been taking Black-Draught at intervals for 20 or more years. There is nothing to compare with it for me. I take it made as a tea."

"I had stomach trouble for a long time. I would swell or bloat up and smother."

"I would work hard all day, be hungry, come in and eat, and then I'd get a good night's rest. I would begin smothering and no matter how cold it was I would have to get up and go out in the air to get my breath."

"I sent for a package of Black-Draught and began taking it. After taking it regularly for a while I quit having these spells."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable remedy, free from dangerous mineral drugs.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Paying for the Babe

Colonel Jacob Rubbert, owner of the Yankees, sat down with a pen at the toter day and had a little heart-to-heart talk with himself. At the end of his interview, he had scattered a wide assortment of figures over several reams of white paper—made the discovery that Babe Ruth is making more money out of baseball than Colonel Rubbert.

This is an unheard of condition in baseball—that a magate should be working for one of his players, but if you judge from the colonel's deductions as to his investment in the Yankees, that's the way it looks. If you should ask Edd Roush, the perennial holdout, about it, he would say this represented an ideal condition and something that he has been working vainly for years to bring about. If you would ask Mr. Will Baker of Philadelphia or Mr. Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh about it, they would tell you in one voice that this condition might be compared favorably with such vast benefits as files in one's beer, (dul razors, radio sopranos and falling of the socks.

But during his heart-to-heart talk with himself, the colonel discovered many interesting facts.

Chides Himself

"You're just a darned old philanthropist," said Colonel Jake to himself. "Here you are, with de highest rated star in de game uff baseball and whud iss id gedding you?"

"Nudding," replied himself to Colonel Jake, "that is I mean almost nudding. Wouldn't you be silly to pay

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Fenny Leonard thinks hockey has a wonderful future. . . . He offered county authorities $35,000 a year for the hockey concession in the proposed town hall in Pittsburgh. . . . There would be 22 home games a year. . . . The University of Mexico has scheduled six football games with United States teams for next fall. . . . Omittling Notre Dame, however. . . . The A. A. U. is going to let Stanislaw Petkiewicz run, after all. . . . The dashnig Pole was here a month and had been barred because of suspicious circumstances when it was suddenly discovered that he was a "diplomatic courier" for his dear Poland. . . . What sort of dispatches he is carrying hasn't been learned, but he does get around that track not only with dispatch but with speed as well. . . . Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the Philadelphia impresario, knows a trick shot with a rubber band and tinfoil wadded as tightly as bullets. . . . he can almost knock you down with it at thirty paces. . . . Bet Max used to shoot paper vads in school.

de Babe $85,000 a year just to swell the attendance for de odder fellers in dis American League?"

"Sure t'ing," himself replied to Colonel Jake. "But whad are you goin' to do about dat?"

"You know what I ought to do?" said Colonel Jake with some heat. "Vell, I should charge does odder guys somet'ing to bring de Babe to their ball parks. De Babe makes as much money for them as he makes for me. And when dey come to New York dey get more money dan dey do anywhere else. Vy don't de Babe, of course! Vy don't you write to dose odder fellers and ask dem to pay part of de Babe's salary?"

"I might do dat," said Colonel Jake, "and I did t'ink once of doing dat very t'ing. But do you know vot does odder fellers would tell me? Ded'd tell me dat dey should be so dumb as to pay de Babe to hit home uns for me in de nint' inning wid de bases full, and beat their ball clubs."

Boy Bandit Could Tell Him

The colonel, of course, should have sought better counsel than himself. He should have gone and had his heart-to-heart talk with the Boy Bandit, Jimmy Johnston, who manages Phil Scott, or enother of the fight managers whose coat of arms is nothing more than a chisel rampant in a patch of Mr. Mellon's spinach. Jimmy Johnston would tell him to go and have the Babe incorporated and charge fans an extra nickle for every game in which the Babe hits a home run. The fans would pay their nickle on the way in, and if the Babe hit no homers that day, they could detach the separate nickle coupon, call at the box office and get their jitney back.

Jimmy Johnston would know a way.

Razorbacks May Win Fifth Title

All Members of Crack Team Are Products of State.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. Jan. 29.—(AP)—No bright lights or gay white way lamps have ever dimmed the eyes of the University of Arkansas' crack basketball squad. They all are products of small towns.

Heading the four-time Southwest Conference champions is Captain Wear Schoonover of Pocahontas. The six foot athletic marvel placed his home town on the map when he was selected on Grantland Rice's all-American grid team last fall. Kenney Holt, center, and Milan Creighton, guard are natives of Fayetteville, site of the university.

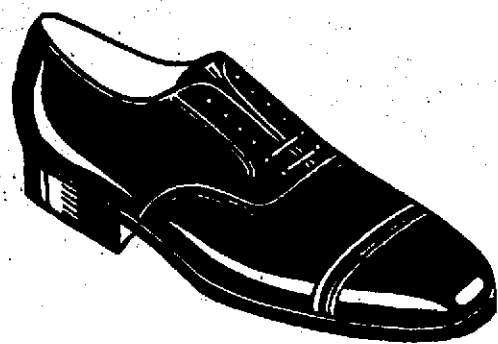

Roy Prewitt calls the village of Grady his home and Jim Pickren, forward and running mate of Schoonover's hails from Salem. Of the towns represented, only Fayetteville is known well even in the state and all are in different sections. However, this five met for the first time at the university and welded together to form one of the strongest quintets in the South. The Razorbacks now are making a strong stand for their fifth successive Southwest Conference title.

Painters and carpenters have completed the work of remodeling Weld's News Stand.
